A History of Pakistani Literature in English 1947–1988

Tariq Rahman

This is a first history of Pakistani literature written in English. It includes those authors who either migrated to Pakistan or whose work is highly relevant to the themes engaging the writers of the new country in the years immediately before and after Partition. It contains a historical account of the novels, drama, belles lettres, and especially of poetry, written from the late 1940s until 1988, when this book was first written. It also contains a bibliography which is important since some of this material is now untraceable. Although there have been considerable later additions to the genres covered in this history, there is no other comparable historical account of Pakistani literature in English during these first forty years. This book covers the course of post-colonial literature in Pakistan and the new course on Pakistani Literature in English that is being taught at universities in Pakistan.

Dr Tariq Rahman is presently Dean, School of Liberal Arts and Social Sciences, at the Beaconhouse National University, Lahore.

Attia Hosain

Distant Traveller

NEW AND SELECTED FICTION

Edited and Selected by Aamer Hussein with Shama Habibullah

The accidental discovery of chapters from an unfinished novel and of unpublished stories made the publication of this anthology of Attia Hosain’s new and selected fiction an inevitability. Attia’s two worlds—the Lucknow she grew up in and the London she later lived and worked in—intersect and mesh in the stories and novel excerpts presented here reflecting her deep and abiding concern with those caught in the cleft stick of history and how they come to terms with it. The distinctive quality of her prose—subtle, elegant, with an uncanny ear for dialogue and sharp, yet sympathetic observation—is displayed to stunning effect as she delineates the tension and pathos of lives and societies in transition. A feast of fiction.

Attia Hosain (1913–1998) was a journalist, broadcaster, and writer. She is the author of Phoenix Fled, a collection of short stories, and Sunlight on a Broken Column, a novel.

Aamer Hussein is a Professorial Fellow at Southampton University and a Senior Fellow at the Institute of English Studies at the University of London.

Shama Habibullah, Attia Hosain’s daughter, is a documentary filmmaker specialising in Development Communication.
Eqbal Ahmad
CRITICAL OUTSIDER AND WITNESS IN A TURBULENT AGE
Stuart Schaar

Eqbal Ahmad, committed democrat and progressive Muslim, saw the future without a crystal ball. He read and travelled widely, met great minds involved in international affairs, novelists, poets, and journalists. Ahmad taught in Massachusetts and became a columnist, with a weekly readership of some four million people. His friends in the USA included Edward Said, Noam Chomsky, Richard Falk, and Howard Zinn. In Pakistan, where he returned in the latter part of his life, he became a cross-border peacemaker between India and Pakistan as well as an anti-nuclear activist. Stuart Schaar’s book highlights the many ways that Ahmad’s ideas and predictions carry weight and deserve our attention. His analysis of terrorism and insurgency still appears relevant and timely. His legacy as a peacemaker and his stress on non-violence and mass mobilization also serve as models for contemporary activists.

Stuart Schaar, Professor Emeritus, Brooklyn College of the City University of New York, retired from forty years of teaching there in 2007.

Educational Crisis and Reform
PERSPECTIVES FROM SOUTH ASIA
Edited by Abbas Rashid and Irfan Muzaffar

The pressure for delivering better quality education for all in South Asia is escalating, in line with the imperatives of a global knowledge economy. But reforming education is not just a technical issue. In order for education reforms to gain momentum, the media, the general populace, and members of the policy-making community need to be more informed about the various dimensions of the educational challenges faced by South Asian societies. The book is a modest attempt to respond to this need. The contributions in this volume are research-based and strive at providing a deeper understanding of the various dimensions of the education crises as well as responses to them.

Abbas Rashid is currently the executive director of the Society for the Advancement of Education (SAHE).

Irfan Muzaffar’s work has expanded to embrace teacher education, education research, education policy analysis, programme design, and evaluation in a variety of cultural contexts that include Africa, South Asia, and the United States.

Contributors: Abbas Rashid, Ajay Sharma, Amita Chudgar, Anjum Halai, Ayesha A. Awan, Birgitte Refslund Sørensen, Faisal Bari, Fareeha Zafar, Irfan Muzaffar, James H. Williams, Manasa Patnam, Marie Lall, Muhammad Farooq Naseer, Pervez Hoodbhoy, Reehana R. Raza, Seher Ahmad, Sushan Acharya, Wilfred J. Perera
Gender, Politics, and Performance in South Asia
Edited by Sheema Kermani, Asif Farrukhi, and Kamran Asdar Ali

Tehrik-e-Niswan, founded in 1979 by Sheema Kermani, strives to empower women in Pakistan and improve their status through the use of drama and the performing arts. Tehrik held a Conference in Karachi in December 2010 aimed at rethinking issues of gender, performance, and politics in South Asia. The present volume is the outcome of this Conference and is based on the papers presented. The contributors of this book address an important gap in the study of South Asia in general and Pakistan in particular. The book demonstrates how, within the South Asian milieu, the cultural forms such as theatre, dance, music, film, or the fine arts have been used to advocate for gender and class equity, women’s rights, and the rights of the marginalised. It explores how cultural forms and performances interrogate the constructions of identity, class, and religious affiliation.

Sheema Kermani is a classical dancer, teacher, theatre practitioner, and women’s rights activist. She is founder and head of Tehrik-e-Niswan.

Asif Farrukhi is an author, critic, and translator. He is editor of Duniyazad, a literary Urdu journal.

Kamran Asdar Ali is Associate Professor of Anthropology and Director of the South Asia Institute at the University of Texas, Austin, USA.

Issues in Pakistan’s Economy
A POLITICAL ECONOMY PERSPECTIVE
THIRD EDITION
S. Akbar Zaidi

This book is about understanding Pakistan’s structural transformation over six decades in a political economy framework. The author examines how and where such transformations have taken place in the economy, society, in class and gender relations, in manifestations of consumerism and culture, and in other ways. He assesses Pakistan’s trajectory of economic and political development and focuses on an economic and social history of Pakistan, using a political economy framework to examine the nature of this structural transformation. The book follows the narrative of the evolution of Pakistan’s social, economic and even political dispensation over many decades, highlighting key developments and events.

S Akbar Zaidi is currently a Visiting Professor at Columbia University, New York, where he has a joint appointment at the School of International and Public Affairs (SIPA), and at the Department of Middle Eastern, South Asian, and African Studies (MESAAS).
Masculinity, Sexuality, and Illegal Migration

HUMAN SMUGGLING FROM PAKISTAN TO EUROPE
Ali Nobil Ahmad

Challenging the idea that labour migration is driven purely by rational economic forces, this book makes use of extensive new data to explore migration, human smuggling and illegal work. In a compelling exploration of global smuggling networks, illegal border-crossings and the subterranean world of Europe’s informal economy, the author links migration to risky economic behavior and erotic male desire. Based on interviews with successive waves of Pakistani immigrants in the UK and Italy, together with ethnographic fieldwork amongst immigration officials and smugglers in Pakistan, this book spans numerous regions, cities, continents and seas. Drawing on psychoanalysis to examine the role of masculinity in the decision to migrate, the author provokes a more complex debate about the causes and consequences of global migration.

Ali Nobil Ahmad is a Fellow at the Zentrum Moderner Orient in Berlin where he researches Pakistan’s political ecology.

Of Brick and Myth

THE GENESIS OF ISLAMIC ARCHITECTURE IN THE INDUS VALLEY
Holly Edwards

Pakistan’s shrine architecture, epitomized by the fourteenth-century tomb of Shaikh Rukn al Din Rukn-i Alam in Multan, is justly renowned for vivid tile work, imposing domes, and surpassing beauty. These buildings are also stylistically distinct from architecture in adjoining regions. This book traces the emergence of this extraordinary building tradition with reference to lesser known commemorative sites throughout the Indus Valley that predate more famous monuments. On the basis of extensive fieldwork, Edwards provides detailed descriptions of individual structures tracking brickworking styles and other significant craft practices. The catalogue of monuments is contextualized with a brief historical narrative and art historical commentary. What distinguishes this study is its tight focus on material evidence and local ethos presented against the grain of previous scholarship.

Dr Holly Edwards is Senior Lecturer in the Art Department at Williams College.
A Princely Affair

Yaqoob Khan Bangash

West Pakistan, on 15 August 1947, was less than half its present size. Nearly a year of negotiations, arguments, threats, and even chance, brought nine princely states into the Pakistani fold. Thereafter followed a long and staggered process of integration. Using hitherto unused and inaccessible primary sources, this path-breaking book completes the story of the creation of Pakistan. In charting the accession and integration of the princely states, this book shows, for the first time in detail, the complicated and often botched processes of the early consolidation of Pakistan. The problems emanating from this early period, haphazard constitutional integration, weak local political forces, the insurgency in Balochistan since 1948, and a weak sense of national identity and citizenship remain with Pakistan today.

Yaqoob Khan Bangash is presently teaching history at Forman Christian College and Information Technology University, Lahore.

Names

A STUDY OF PERSONAL NAMES, IDENTITY, AND POWER IN PAKISTAN
Tariq Rahman

This book is the first scholarly study of personal names in Pakistan and is based on an analysis of names from all over the country, both from the early years and from the contemporary period. This work describes beliefs about names, onomastic practices, and changes in names during the last sixty years or so. Names are indexed with identity and reflect a person’s religion, sect, class, region (urban or rural), degree of modernization, and ethnic origin. They may be markers of social worth or stigmas. In some situations they may well be dangerous and people may conceal their names or take up new ones to avoid persecution. This study of names, therefore, provides insights into the way identity, ideology, and power are interrelated in Pakistan.

Dr Tariq Rahman is presently Dean, School of Liberal Arts and Social Sciences at the Beaconhouse National University, Lahore.
Several factors make the urban land and that on Karachi’s fringe a highly contested commodity: federal, provincial, and local land-owning agencies, corporate sector interests, formal and informal developers, international capital, and military cantonments compete for control and for extracting maximum value from it. The victims of this battle for turf and profits are the city’s social and physical environment and its low and lower middle-income groups. This book deals with the history, evolution, and present day realities around who owns land, its legal and illegal acquisition, land-use conversions and development, the actors involved and their relationship with each other and with the public at large, the often violent conflicts that take place in this process and the measures that can be taken to regulate the land market for the creation of a better urban environment and for providing homes to its less privileged.

Arif Hasan is an architect/planner dealing with urban planning and development issues, particularly those concerning Asia and Pakistan.

Noman Ahmed is Professor and Chairman, Department of Architecture and Planning at the NED University of Engineering and Technology, Karachi.

Mansoor Raza is a freelance researcher with various action researches to his credit.

Asiya Sadiq-Polack is Associate Professor at the Department of Architecture and Planning at the NED University of Engineering and Technology, Karachi.

Saeed Uddin Ahmed is Lecturer at the Department of Architecture and Planning at the NED University of Engineering and Technology, Karachi.

Moizza B. Sarwar is a DPhil student at the Department of Social Policy, Sommerville College, Oxford.
